EAVESDROPPING DETECTION SOLUTIONS® is presenting a specialised morning briefing for all employees dealing with confidential and sensitive information, information with economic value, custodial information, records and personal information on a regular basis. Those responsible for protecting their organisations and themselves against information leakage and theft are also welcome. The briefing helps employees understand how they may improve business performance by using a practical but thorough process to protect their business secrets and intellectual property.

The objectives of the information protection briefings are:

1. to help employees recognise that the information they handle on a daily basis is valuable and that they are vulnerable;
2. to increase their security awareness and to make them alert of the threats against corporate information;
3. to inform them of their roles and responsibilities in this regard.

Corporate information gathering – from the ethical to the clearly criminal – is a fact of life, but in bad economic times, the urge to get an edge is greater!

The business climate has changed dramatically and more and more companies are now making their staff on all levels aware of the threats against corporate information. No business is immune! Your competitors want to know what makes your company successful or what your company may do in the future to improve its competitive situation.

We present a new dynamic look at the threats based on real life case examples. Attendees receive a formal presentation and do a practical session to identify threats against information in the office and other environments. Examples from case studies and films are used to analyse the implications of events and the lessons learned for today's challenges.

The briefing will take the participants on an eye-opening journey regarding this important topic. More than 2800 corporate employees have attended this briefing since 2007.

For additional information about this briefing or to arrange a meeting to discuss your requirements (we also present the briefing in-house) please call us on Tel (012) 664-3157 or send an e-mail to info@tscm-za.com.

The cost per person is R 995.00 (Including VAT). Complete the registration form and return it to Fax (012) 664-3180 or (086) 670-9007 if you wish to attend this unique briefing!
